TERMIS World Congress Announcement

The COVID-19 pandemic has led to many restrictions in regards to travelling and the hosting of congresses by governments and health authorities around the world. While this situation continues to develop and people are getting vaccinated, it still remains unclear if it is possible to bring our professional community together for the 6th World Congress of the Tissue Engineering and Regenerative Medicine International Society (TERMIS2021) in November 2021. At the moment, the Dutch government still imposes strong restrictions on mass indoor events spanning multiple days. With local expert epidemiologists predicting another wave later in the fall, it is highly unlikely these restrictions will be lifted sufficiently to organize the high-quality interactive event we have been planning. Therefore, the Local Organising Committee, supported by TERMIS global Governing Board, has decided to make the conference digital!

We were very much looking forward to welcoming you here in Maastricht in person, hosting a vibrant and fruitful exchange of views in TERM science as well as offering a fun social program.

However, we also have a responsibility to guarantee your safety during the conference, and currently the risks are too high, which forced us to make this decision.

We are currently working on the new digital program and would like to inform you that the final program will be communicated in September 2021. Further details about the digital platform and how to pre-record your presentation or upload your poster, will also be sent to you soon.

We would also like to inform you that changing the congress to a digital congress does not change your acceptance of your abstract and symposium in the program. Hence, we are looking forward to host you all on the online conference platform in November!
